- An intimate and inspiring journey through the travel sketches of renowned architect Steve Ziger
- It will appeal to practicing architects and artists and students, as well as intrepid travellers looking to experience slow travel

An intimate and inspiring journey through the travel sketches of renowned architect Steve Ziger. Part memoir, part travel guide, part drawing manual and architectural history, this captivating book features 240 ink, pencil, and watercolour sketches rendered over five decades. Ziger's personal experiences are blended with insightful observations about the built environment and the wondrous potential of human-made design. This timely collection of sketches reminds us of the value of being present to the world around us, and the power of drawing to help us see, learn, and understand a place.

Steve Ziger, FAIA, is the cofounder of the award-winning studio of Ziger|Snead Architects. He is a founding trustee of the Baltimore Design School, a pioneering public middle and high school that focuses on fashion, architecture, and graphic design.
