Since 2000, Andrea Uhrig and Dirk Bayer, together with their small team, have been contributing to self-sufficient building culture in urban and rural contexts with works that are both atmospherically complex and constructively logical. Applying its broad, internationally-orientated experience, the Kaiserslautern-based practice strives for architectural solutions that serve the concrete everyday reality of their users in a beneficial way. This is clearly evident in the award-winning projects Ökumenischer Kirchenpavillon in Landau (2015), Kolumbarium in the Gelöbniskirche Maria Schutz in Kaiserslautern (2021) and the densification of the village centre of Hütschenhausen (2026).
