- 100 photographs that changed the world: a powerful visual narrative of humanity through the images that shaped our history

A visual journey through two centuries of history: this book collects one hundred iconic photographs that captured crucial moments in human history. From world wars to space exploration, civil rights movements to climate change, each image is a window into the past, present, and even a possible future. Taken by legendary photographers or anonymous witnesses of their time, these pictures showcase the powerful storytelling ability of photography as a tool of collective memory. A striking, emotional, and visually rich volume—this updated edition of a bestselling classic brings history into sharp focus for today's readers.

Roberto Mottadelli directs the Icegeo editorial lab in Milan and is a lecturer at the Department of Cultural and Environmental Heritage at the University of Milan, where he contributes to courses on visual culture. Gianni Morelli is a geographer by training and a novelist by passion. Over the years, he has travelled extensively, worked with renowned research institutes, and gained significant experience in publishing. Margherita Giacosa is an art historian with a passion for graphic design and illustration.
