111 Places Along the Tyne and Wear Metro That You Shouldn't Miss takes readers beyond the region's famous landmarks, from Hadrian's Wall to the iconic Tyne Bridge, and reveals the stories that make Tyne and Wear unique. Following the Metro's 60 stations, this guide uncovers incredible tales of local characters, from eccentric residents and wild Victorian industrialists to imprisoned kings and missing bones. Readers can discover bizarre follies and hidden histories: the miner who dynamited a cave home into a cliffside to avoid paying rent, the warren of tunnels built beneath Newcastle in just two years, and the Wearside links to American independence. They can visit a Greek-style temple outside Sunderland, the site of the first incandescent lightbulb demonstration, the world's oldest operating railway, atmospheric monasteries, haunted castles, historic waggonways and the secrets of Tyneside's seaside towns. From city to coast — and even a vampire rabbit — every place is reachable by Metro.

Elizabeth Atkin is a writer and editor from North East England who has spent more than a decade working for a variety of magazines and newspapers, and writing about interesting places across the UK and Europe. She is the author of 111 Places in County Durham That You Shouldn't Miss, which won the 2023 Travel Media Award for Guide of the Year. Gareth Clark has worked in publishing across the Middle East, Asia and Europe. After editing Time Out magazines in Beijing and Abu Dhabi, he returned to the UK via Brussels, Kalamata and Ljubljana to write for the UK's longest-running travel magazine, Wanderlust, and has also penned guidebooks to Belgium, Luxembourg, China, Malta and Greece. He can usually be found in the bakeries of his native North Tyneside, continuing his search for the perfect cinnamon bun. Laura Atkin is a photographer and artist from North East England who photographed the award-winning 111 Places in County Durham That You Shouldn't Miss.
