A Long View explores the award-winning residential design of Bohlin Cywinski Jackson through the lens of fifteen private residences across the United States and Canada. With a curated selection of homes completed between 2016 and 2026, the book tells the story of how BCJ's work has evolved across a wider range of geographical regions and fresh material expressions, led by an emergent group of design voices within the practice who are carrying forward its ethos of humane, deeply collaborative design. The homes presented here exist in diverse settings: from a rustic retreat in the wilderness of Ontario to the transformation of an existing Pittsburgh home into a container for light; a home embedded in a sagebrush-covered butte in Wyoming to a delicate wood framed guest cabin on a remote island in the Pacific Northwest. Each resonates within its unique circumstances of client, place, and material.

Bohlin Cywinski Jackson is an internationally acclaimed, award-winning architecture practice focused on designing places that inspire connection and wonder. We believe in an architecture that springs from the nature of place, people, and the way we make things. John Gendall is a New York-based writer specialising in architecture, landscape architecture, and cities. He is the co-founder of Chapter, an award-winning editorial and communications agency specialising in architecture, landscape architecture, and design.
