The best-selling pocket-size guide to goings-on in New York City—now in its sixth year!

This attractive little volume offers a day-by-day guide to the coming year in New York City: cultural events, holidays, historical anniversaries, and much more. Each week gets its own page, with enough space to record your own appointments. The almanac's numerous special features include weather predictions by the noted meteorological sage Professor Vaticinate; notes on the night sky by Joe Rao, an Associate of the Hayden Planetarium; style predictions by fashion historian Raissa Bretaña; and a New York book and movie for every month. Charming illustrations by Andrey Kokorin depict the city's favourite activities, as well as its characteristic foodstuffs and fauna. Beautifully crafted with creamy, high-quality paper and a sewn binding, this almanac is the perfect companion to New York City in 2027—equally suited for longtime New Yorkers and first-time explorers.
