

Bookstores of the World

Jean-Yves Mollier

Patricia Sorel

ISBN	9780789215161
Publisher	Abbeville Press
Binding	Hardback
Territory	World excluding USA, Canada, Puerto Rico, and Australia
Size	311 mm x 241 mm
Pages	306 Pages
Illustrations	252 color
Price	£75.00

- The biggest and best-illustrated survey of the bookstores of the world
- Truly global coverage extending to the Near East, Asia, Africa, and South America
- Photographs that will stir the wanderlust of every book lover
- A substantive text from expert authors

"Erudite and eye-catching, Bookstores of the World is a treat for armchair travelers and an inspirational list of destinations for any book lover." — Shelf Awareness

A magnificently illustrated global tour of contemporary bookstores, from Paris to Seoul.

Even in these days of online commerce, the physical bookstore retains its fascination as a place to gather and discover new art and ideas, often serendipitously; in fact, the bookstore is a refuge from the often unreflective world outside. This splendid tribute to the bookstores of the world begins in France—which has the most bookstores per capita of any country—and continues throughout Europe, the Americas, the Near East, Asia, and Africa. Along the way we encounter legendary emporia such as City Lights in San Francisco and Foyle's in London, as well as new innovators such as the architecturally breathtaking Zhongshuge in Hangzhou. The insightful text explores the factors that have shaped bookselling in each region, from the price-fixing laws of France and Germany to the cultural and geographic diversity of the United States.

Illustrated with superb photographs of storefront and interiors, packed shelves and carefully curated displays, Bookstores of the World will inspire every bibliophile to chart new itineraries.

Jean-Yves Mollier is a noted scholar of contemporary history who teaches at Versailles Saint-Quentin-en-Yvelines University. He has published numerous works on the history of bookselling and publishing. Patricia Sorel, who teaches at the University of Paris Nanterre, is also an authority on bookselling and publishing.

