- Brussels' Kitchen, the reference foodie blog for Brussels, shares the best addresses where one can eat good food in style
- Includes recipes and interviews with chefs and architects

In this guide Sarah Cisinski and Chloé Roose honour the restaurants, bars and tearooms where one simply feels good, where one can enjoy a brief coffee break or sit and relax all day, where the food is hearty and comforting, and where one can admire the architectural details or chatter for hours with the chef. Every address is selected with this in mind: 'you eat well and you eat in style'. Includes interviews with artisans, chefs and architects, as well as exclusive recipes. Text in English and French. www.brusselskitchen.com

Chloe Roose and Sarah Cisinski are interior architects and designers, passionate about food and in love with Brussels. Brussels' Kitchen brings together their favourite food spots in the Belgian capital, combining both great cuisine and beautiful interiors. Bars, restaurants, lunch joints, tea rooms, or even Michelin-starred restaurants, their selection is personal and keeps on building the Brussels' Kitchen universe.
