For over 30 years, Michael Görmann has been interested in the beautiful things in life - writing about them and photographing them. His favourite topics: anything that in some way moves. It should be loud and also smell like burnt rubber. His other subjects are watches and technical gadgets of all sorts. Görmann "hones in on" such quarry for an array of media outlets. His experience includes having been the chief reporter of UHREN-MAGAZIN, (a magazine about watches), after which he founded two agencies and worked for publications such as Focus, Playboy, Robb Report, and Stern.
