- How to successfully implement change in education
- Thirty practical suggestions and in-depth material

How can design studies be made more practical? How can, for example, innovation, creativity, sustainability or resilience become an everyday part of training events? In 2021, the iF Design Foundation published its white book on the future of design education on the basis of international research. The key conclusion was: design studies must change radically in order to master the challenges of the future. This was followed by a three-year cooperation with Neue Sammlung Munich that provided concrete impulses.
