- The combination of beautiful photography and inspiring quotes make this the perfect gift book

Many people have the desire to travel with no fixed destination, on a road to nowhere. Martin Kers has captured that longing by photographing desolate landscapes that show a world free from technology and human interference. On a journey narrated by 350 striking images, Kers takes us past the end of the world. In this space, beyond human interference, we find an endless void filled with nature in all its self-sufficient glory. Inspiring quotes by famous authors and thinkers are scattered throughout the book, making it a perfect gift. Text in English and Dutch.

Martin Kers is an interesting man: he takes pictures of landscapes, but prefers the term 'outdoor photographer'. A characteristic of his work is that he shows the 'normal' as extraordinary. Having travelled the world working for newspapers and magazines, he has a vast selection of experiences to help him choose the locations for his shots.
