- With lovely illustrations by Bodo Rott
- A story that fills children with excitement about the world of ceramics

A spectacular discovery brings excitement and wonder to the comfortable existence of the two dragon children Drako and Naja. As new friends enter their lives, everything around them appears to suddenly change. They embark on an adventure into the world of ceramics, one far beyond paper and plastic tableware. Fly away with them into faraway lands and eras, and discover mysteries while conjuring up the magic of fire and uncovering the allure of colours. The story is as full of excitement as the illustrations are bright, fanciful, and inspiring. Both come together in a symbiosis that communicates the history of art and culture to children of eight years and older in a lively and captivating way! Text in German.
