

Excuses

Buildings and Projects by Norman Kelley

Carrie Norman

Thomas Kelley

ISBN	9783038604839
Publisher	Park Books
Binding	Hardback
Territory	World excluding Austria, France, Germany, Switzerland, Puerto Rico, United States, Canada, and Japan
Size	320 mm x 240 mm
Pages	256 Pages
Illustrations	180 color, 20 b&w
Price	£55.00

- First monograph in Chicago- and Cambridge-based architecture and design collaborative Norman Kelley
- Features 16 of Norman Kelley's projects completed between 2012 and 2025
- Offers additional perspectives on architectural practice, theory, and collaboration

The work of Chicago- and Cambridge-based architecture and design collaborative Norman Kelley begins with what already exists. Like tailors, they make measured alterations to buildings, interiors, furniture, and art.

Excuses: Buildings and Projects by Norman Kelley gathers 16 of their projects completed between 2012 and 2025. They are presented as a flipbook of situational observations—or excuses—through recurring triptychs of technical drawings, casual photography, and critical captions. Norman Kelley offers its excuses as an alternative theory to adaptive reuse, towards a way of looking for place in the contradictions between past and present, wrong and right, old and new.

Contributions by architects and educators Jan de Vylder and Spencer McNeil and curator and researcher Irene Sunwoo reflect on Norman Kelley's varied work, offering perspectives on practice, theory, and collaboration.

Carrie Norman is a founding partner of Chicago- and Cambridge-based architecture and design collaborative Norman Kelley and an assistant professor and Director of Undergraduate Major and Minor Programs at MIT School of Architecture and Planning in Cambridge, MA. Thomas Kelley is a founding partner of Chicago- and Cambridge-based architecture and design collaborative Norman Kelley and an associate professor at the School of Architecture at UIC in Chicago.