Herb Greene's Generations showcases six decades of the art and architecture of Herb Greene, informed by his readings in brain science and history. This "picture book" is organised to showcase images of Mr. Greene's architectural work alongside large-scale images of his collage paintings and armature drawings in a way that reveals the unified philosophy behind all of his work. Its purpose is to tell a story of the important interrelationships between art, science, and philosophy, which is described with a simple narrative juxtaposed alongside these images.

Herb Greene is an architect who studied under the direction of Bruce Goff. His architecture received international acclaim and is published worldwide. Alongside his unique architecture are a body of collage paintings, which express the same qualities and philosophies in painted form. His work is an analysis of a history in art and science that has shaped human experience and that human experience reshapes.
