- Studies the remarkable architectural oeuvre of a professional pair with contrasting backgrounds - Graeme Mann from Scotland and Patricia Capua Mann from Italy
- The featured buildings all boast real visual flair, making this book of interest to practising architects and students of architecture

An architectural couple with contrasting roots, Graeme Mann from Scotland and Patricia Capua Mann from Italy founded their office in Lausanne in 1990. Since then they have produced a remarkable oeuvre. All of their buildings are developed with consideration and care: for instance, the large multipurpose sports and community hall in Villaz-St-Pierre, which is anchored into the topography, or the striking structure of a secondary school in Gland.

Text in English and German.
