We choose the best images from well-known classic and contemporary fine artists, plus talented emerging illustrators and designers from around the globe. Japanese painter and printmaker, Utagawa Hiroshige (1797-1858), dominated the popular art of woodblock printing in the first half of the 19th century along with Hokusai. By subtly orchestrating colours and points of view, Hiroshige transformed everyday landscapes into intimate lyrical scenes, revering the passing moment.
