- This book covers the work of four of Neil Denari's projects: Sotoak Extension in Al Paso, Texas, the HL-23 Building in New York, the Keelung Harbor in Taiwan, and the Alan Voo House in Los Angeles
- This book is a compilation of monograph and discussion with Neil M. Denari during his period at Ohio State University for the Baumer Sessions

Neil M. Denari / NMDA: The Baumer Lectures contains transcribed conversations that were part of Neil M. Denari's appointment as 2015-16 Baumer Distinguished Professor at Ohio State University, and provides a close look at a few recent projects: the Sotoak Extension, the HL-23 Building, the New Keelung Harbor Services Building, and the Sori Yanagi Museum. Essays by Justin Diles, Courtney Coffman and Kay Bea Jones augment these conversations and highlight a number of elements in both the projects that are presented as well as those from NMDA's larger body of work. Each project documented here is the result of a practice that has continued to tackle multiple facets of the discipline simultaneously while evolving a trajectory of work that continues to exhibit the aspects that made it original in the first place.

Benjamin Wilke is the editor of the Source Books in Architecture series, and teaches design studios and seminars at undergraduate and graduate level in the Knowlton School at Ohio State University.
