- Surprising and tasteful whisky stories
- Whisky anecdotes told with plenty of tongue in cheek humour
- A treasure trove of whisky knowledge
- Written by whisky expert Fernand Dacquin, author of The Whisky Book and Wonderful Whiskies

What connects Samuel Maverick, Mary Dowling, Cornelis Melyn, and Burebista to whisky? Which distillery was the birthplace of the IRA's rebellion? Why should you not mix up bottled-in-bond with bottle-in-box? Which dynamic distillery proudly claims, "If it gets someone drunk, we'll make it" as their team motto? What led to the murder of skilled distiller William Johnston by the enchanting Lou Parris? Which whisky was packaged in a tin can that needed to be opened like sardines, using a key? And exactly how much whisky is in a 'tot' and a 'sniffer'? If these questions have piqued your curiosity, the answers (and many more) await you in this book's 63 1/2 surprising and often humorous whisky anecdotes. The author, drawing on his extensive experience as a travel and whisky journalist, shares these stories in his signature tongue-in-cheek style. Readers of his previous works will recognise the unpredictability of each story. This book pairs perfectly with a fine whisky.

Fleming Ferand Dacquin has contributed to travel and whisky magazines in Belgium and the Netherlands. In 2011, Fernand was inducted as a 'Keeper of the Quaich', an exclusive international society that honours individuals for their special contributions to the Scotch whisky industry. He is also a member of the Royal Celtic Society in Edinburgh, established by Sir Walter Scott in 1820. His previous publications include The Whisky Book and Exceptional Whiskies for Lannoo.
