- The painter Rose Wylie has an exhibition of new paintings at The Windsor Gallery, Florida, in 2020
- This exhibition catalogue reproduces all the works in the show

Rose Wylie RA is the third artist to participate in an exhibition collaboration between the Royal Academy and The Gallery at Windsor, Vero Beach, Florida. This book accompanies her show and features an interview with the artist by Tim Marlow, Artistic Director at the Royal Academy, and an essay by the actor and art collector Russell Tovey.

The exhibition comprises new paintings and drawings – wittily observed and subtly sophisticated meditations on the nature of visual representation itself. Using images as a prompt, Wylie often works from memory, and the associated works on a single subject offer an insight into her complex creative process.

Wylie's work has been the subject of renewed critical attention in recent years, with major shows in Europe at venues including Turner Contemporary, Margate (2016), the Serpentine Sackler Gallery, London (2017), Tate Modern, London (2018), and the Centro de Arte Contemporáneo, Málaga (2018).

Tim Marlow is Artistic Director at the Royal Academy of Arts, London. Russell Tovey is an actor, art collector and host of the podcast Talk Art.
