- An exclusive glimpse into the royal kitchen: by the woman who served as the personal chef to King Charles III for eleven years
- Updated new edition: featuring completely re-photographed recipes and content fully updated to reflect King Charles's reign
- 80 easy-to-follow recipes: plus palace stories, original notes, and floral decoration ideas—a royal treat and the perfect gift book

Carolyn Robb spent eleven years as the personal chef to the then Prince of Wales—now King Charles III—and Princess Diana. In this updated edition, she once again opens the doors to the royal kitchens, sharing 80 recipes for every occasion, from elegant canapés to nostalgic desserts.

Interwoven with the recipes are stories from life behind palace walls, including festive family gatherings and memories of the young Princes William and Harry. The book also features floral decorating ideas by royal florist Sarah Champier, along with original notes and personal recollections.

Carolyn Robb served as the personal chef to the then Prince of Wales—now King Charles III—and Princess Diana for eleven years. She cooked for Princes William and Harry from the time they were seven and four years old; she also worked for numerous other members of the royal family. This firsthand, lived proximity is something no research project could ever replace. Sarah Champier was the head florist for the Royal Household and enhances the book with floral decoration ideas for individual dishes and occasions. For the new edition, all dishes are being re-photographed. The watercolours are by Akane Miyashi.
