TITLE INFORMATION
Tel: +44 (0) 1394 389950
Email: uksales@accartbooks.com
Web: https://www.accartbooks.com/uk

The Duffer's Handbook of Golf

Grantland Rice

ISBN	9780789254849
Publisher	Abbeville Press
Binding	Hardback
Territory	World excluding USA, Canada, Puerto Rico, and Australia
Size	203 mm x 152 mm
Pages	176 Pages
Price	£14.95

- A handsome new gift edition of the 1926 classic of golf advice and humour
- Legendary sportswriter Grantland Rice reflects on the joys and frustrations of the game, from the viewpoint of the average golfer
- Also features useful tips from the great golfers of the day, including Walter Hagen, Jim Martin, and Bobby Jones
- Illustrated throughout with delightful period cartoons
- Handsome stamped binding in real cloth

A giftable new edition of the all-time 1926 classic of golf advice and humour.

In 1926, just as golf was becoming a popular pastime in America, legendary sportswriter Grantland Rice set out to make a golf book for the rest of us—for the "duffers," the average golfers whose swing could frankly be a little better. In 60 short chapters written in his wry and witty prose—and sometimes his sparkling comic verse—Rice reflects on the joys and frustrations of the game, and also shares a good many useful tips gleaned from the great golfers of the day, including Walter Hagen, Jim Martin, and Bobby Jones. Charming cartoons by Clare Briggs, a pioneer of the American comic strip, are interspersed throughout.
This new gift edition of The Duffer's Handbook, featuring a stamped binding in real cloth, will bring Grantland Rice's humour and wisdom to a new generation of golfers.

Grantland Rice (1880–1954) was known as the Dean of American Sportswriters. He wrote on many sports, including baseball, football, tennis, and boxing, for the leading newspapers and magazines of his day, and was particularly influential in the popularisation of golf in the United States. Clare Briggs (1875–1930) was a prominent American cartoonist.

Publish date 10th May 2027