- Exclusive portraits of the world's most prestigious golf courses and luxury resorts, blending heritage and modern design
- Insightful features on cutting-edge golf equipment, fashion, and influential personalities shaping the sport's aesthetic and technological evolution
- A sophisticated visual and editorial experience that balances stunning photography with in-depth cultural and historical narratives

The GOLF Book presents golf not merely as a sport but as a sophisticated lifestyle emblematic of elegance, tradition, and modern luxury. This lavishly illustrated volume offers an immersive journey through the world's most prestigious golf courses—from the historic links of St. Andrews and Augusta National to contemporary architectural marvels like Cape Kidnappers and Thracian Cliffs. Readers will discover exclusive resorts renowned for their impeccable service and Michelin-starred gastronomy, alongside insights into the latest innovations in high-end golf equipment and fashion from leading brands such as PXG, Honma, and Loro Piana. Complemented by interviews with iconic players, the book explores the cultural and social dimensions of golf, including legendary tournaments. Designed to reflect the timeless elegance of the sport, The GOLF Book is the definitive coffee table companion for discerning enthusiasts who appreciate tradition, innovation, and the luxurious lifestyle that golf embodies.

Stefan Maiwald, born in 1971 in Braunschweig, is one of Germany's most versatile authors. He has lived on the island of Grado between Venice and Trieste for 20 years and writes novels, crime novels and non-fiction. As a journalist, he writes for various magazines about his great passion: the golf sport. His blog postausitalien.com is the most-read German-language Italy page. Maiwald spends most of his free time on the beach; Grado has seven kilometers of fine sand.
