Alain Wolff Architectes is a monograph on the Swiss architecture firm who have a produced a number of remarkable buildings – mainly in rural areas

In 2003, the Sion-born architect Alain Wolff founded his architectural office in Lausanne. Since then, a number of remarkable buildings have been produced – mainly in rural areas. For instance the Ecole de la Verrerie is carefully integrated into the surroundings and impresses with its materialization in wood and concrete. The arrangement of the classrooms and sports hall resembles a well-balanced organism.

Text in English, German and French.
