"Design writers Thijs Demeulemeester and Bert Voet's book Carchitecture explores the historical parallels between trends in architectural styles and car design." — Financial Times

"It's a match made in heaven. Architecture and car design are passions many hold dear, and coauthors Thijs Demeulemeester and Bert Voet are fueling their own verve once again with a follow-up to their aptly named best seller – Carchitecture – and a visual journey across America and through the annals of lasting style." — Aspire Magazine

"No matter if you're a fan of pole barns and VW buses, mid-century modern homes and the then-rare European imports, or a classic craftsman and big, finned American land yachts, Carcitechture USA: American Homes With Horsepower will entrance you with homes both spectacular and sublime, and the cars that are the perfect companion parked in the garage." — Forbes

A book like a road trip along iconic American homes and the unique cars that perfectly match them. Carchitecture goes America. Through four chapters – Iconic Houses, Cars & Stars, Californication and American Cars – and five essays, the reader discovers the wonderful interplay of architecture and car design. Eyecandy for architecture and car lovers alike.

Thijs Demeulemeester is a Belgian lifestyle journalist, specializing in interiors, contemporary art and architecture. Bert Voet is a Belgian freelance journalist specializing in cars.
