Originally from Australia, Madeleine Waller has been living and working in London since 1987. After studying photo-journalism at London College of Printing, Madeleine began her photographic career working for newspapers and magazines on a broad range of assignments. Her work has been featured in The Sunday Telegraph, The Independent, The Independent Magazine and Marie Claire among others. Waller's personal projects, such as Urban Swimmers, have been exhibited across the UK as well as in The National Portrait Gallery, London.
