Award-winning designer Eva Maddox has been described as a "change agent" and a "visionary design theorist and practitioner who has reshaped the interior design profession and raised the standards of commercial design and architecture." This comprehensive monograph traces her creative journey from a tiny town in rural Tennessee to her own renowned firm, Eva Maddox Associates, to a dedicated branding studio within the international architectural practice Perkins + Will. Profusely illustrated with sketches, plans, source material, and color photography, the book includes 35 major projects: colleges, hospitals, financial institutions, company headquarters, libraries, museums, showrooms, and retail establishments, culminating in a series of designs for furniture and workspace giant Haworth. Introductory chapters on Maddox's innovative branding and patterning and a final section on her extensive experience in teaching, including the founding of graduate school Archeworks, complete this review of the career and legacy of an exceptional woman of design. Contents: Part 1: Innovator, A Tennessee Childhood, The Beginnings of a Firm, Branded Environments and Patterning; Part 2: Designer, Eva Maddox Associates, Showrooms and Retail, Healthcare, Universities, Perkins + Will, Museums and Exhibits, Financial and Corporate, Haworth Showrooms and Headquarters; Part 3: Educator, Early Teaching, Archeworks.
