- The first catalogue raisonné of Frans Post (1612-1680) published in over 30 years

Frans Post (1612-1680) is the first trained artist from the Old World to paint landscapes of the Americas. He spent seven years of his life in Brazil (1637-1644) where he painted canvases that are highly regarded today and were subject to an exhibition organized by the Louvre Museum in 2005. In Holland he painted another 148 works that have been sought by collectors and museums in the past decades. This sumptuous publication documents Post's entire oeuvre, which includes 155 paintings known to date, 57 drawings, and 35 prints. The editors together with four renowned experts worked together to establish the corpus of authentic works.
