In a fascinating play of light and shadow, these photographs display subtle aesthetics that leave room for interpretation. Text in English and German.

With a superb eye for the beauty and inconsistencies of inconspicuous details, the photobook In Secret: Friederike von Rauch presents the viewer with astounding views of interior spaces. Her compositions of light and shadow, devoid of people, disclose a subtle artistic aesthetic and are at times evocative of abstract painting. This volume features photographs from different series produced between 2009 and 2013. Her photographs – all taken with an analogue camera and in natural light – are characterized by an interaction of spatial experiences. Seen from von Rauch's point of view, dark alcoves, bare walls, individual objects, and traces of the human hand develop a life of their own while at the same time allowing room for interpretation. Text in English and German.

Friederike von Rauch was born in 1967, and lives and works in Berlin. She has received a number of awards and has exhibited in Germany and abroad since 1998.
