- Breathtaking photography by two of the world's leading wildlife photographers, Sue Flood and Ian Dawson
- A beautiful visual account of the two harshest and most fragile environments on Earth – the Arctic and the Antarctic
- Readers will love the heart-stopping and playful images of polar wildlife, including penguins, seals and polar bears
- A powerful document of two ice-capped wonderlands fading before our eyes

Some places on Earth are disappearing before our eyes. Midnight Sun is the stunning new photography book by award-winning polar specialists Sue Flood and Ian Dawson.

The Arctic and Antarctic. Spectacular, harsh and rapidly changing. From penguins huddled against fierce blizzards to polar bears hunting across ice floes, this unique volume captures all the drama and fragility of both regions.

Sue Flood and Ian Dawson are united by a shared affinity for the coldest places on Earth, and a conviction that such environments are among those most in need of protection. Through their breathtaking images of ice, wildlife and the people who call these frozen worlds home, this collection forms a document to be treasured, a breathtaking record of landscapes that may not survive the century.
More than a photography book, through Midnight Sun witness the polar world before it changes forever.

"In this quite stunning collection of photos Sue Flood and Ian Dawson have caught the magical beauty of the far North and South and the surprising richness of human and animal life which survives in such hard and desolate landscapes. Their work brings to life the spectacular scenery of lands too often ignored." – Sir Michael Palin

Sue Flood is an award-winning photographer and filmmaker, zoologist, adventure travel leader and public speaker, with a special passion for the wildlife and icy beauty of the polar regions. She first visited the poles during her 11 years in the BBC's Natural History Unit, working on such global hits as The Blue Planet and Planet Earth, with Sir David Attenborough; on National Geographic and Discovery Channel co-productions and on the Disney nature movie Earth. Her many accolades include multiple awards in the Travel Photographer of the Year, International Photographer of the Year and International Garden Photographer of the Year competitions; the Art Wolfe (best in festival) Prize in the International Conservation Photography Awards; a Royal Photographic Society silver medal; membership of the USA-based The Explorers Club and election as a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society. Sue lives with her husband Chris in North Wales, UK. Ian Dawson is a photographer drawn to the world's edges. His work has appeared in publications including The Sunday Times, The Wall Street Journal and Vogue, as well as various BBC projects, with assignments ranging from conflict zones and royal tours to environmental reportage and wildlife stories. He co-founded Midnight Sun Voyages in 2023, a company dedicated to carefully curated, small-scale photographic journeys. Ian is also a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society and has volunteered for over two decades with Scottish Mountain Rescue. He lives with his family in Scotland's Loch Lomond & The Trossachs National Park in Scotland.
