Song of Silent Water by Mathieu Chaze is a visual meditation on nature, captured through a lens that prioritizes sincerity and essentiality over contemporary trends. Curated by the renowned David Campany, the volume brings together images born from long walks and a profound observation of the landscape: a dog in the mist, rolling hills, a tree reflected in water, a solitary heron. As noted by the legendary photographer Bernard Plossu in his introduction, Chaze's photographs possess a "secret atmosphere" and a fragrance that speaks directly to the soul, free from technical artifice or passing fashions. The work explores the concept of sustained time, where individual moments are not isolated events but fragments linked by a quiet, invisible rhythm—much like the intervals that give shape to a song. Beautifully designed by Federico Barbon and printed in duotone, this book invites the reader to walk alongside the artist on a journey of pure expression and a discovery of the authentic.
