- The world's first tear-off calendar features 365 vinyl covers from both well-known and obscure musicians across all genres, offering a diverse collection of classics and hidden gems
- Daily Music Inspiration: Enjoy daily doses of music inspiration and graphic delight as you tear off each page to reveal a new vinyl cover
- Each page includes the names of the cover photographers, illustrators, and art directors, acknowledging their contributions to the visual artistry of the album covers

Vinyl records and record stores are currently experiencing a revival, and this is also bringing the artistically designed covers of past decades back into our consciousness. They present us with real music and design history in an inspiring way.

Now, for the ninth time, the world's first tear-off calendar is being published with 365 vinyl covers by well-known and unknown musicians from all genres. These include real classics, but also the unknown and the bizarre. In addition to the daily music inspiration and the graphic feast for the eyes, the names of the respective cover photographers, illustrators and art directors are also listed on each page. A must-have for all record lovers and graphic design nerds!

And the hit: with the printed Spotify codes, many albums can be played anywhere and immediately.
