

The Other Side of Surfing

Edited by Christian Hundertmark

Edited by Quirin Rohleder

ISBN	9783981771008
Publisher	Galindo Publishing
Binding	Hardback
Territory	USA & Canada
Size	9.06 in x 11.22 in
Pages	260 Pages
Illustrations	274 color, 40 b&w
Price	$60.00

- Discover the individuals who have embraced a more adventurous way of life, whether that's through their artistic work, dedication to the extreme sports or a combination of the two, through stunning photography and enlightening texts

Take an enlightening look into the lives of surf enthusiasts – professional and otherwise – from all corners of the globe. Read about Munich-born river surfing pioneer Quirin Rohleder on the evolution of a once-obscure sport, and filmmaker Mario Hainzl on spotlighting West Africa's lesser known surfing destinations. Meet João Parrinha and Xandi Kreuzeder, the Santo Isidoro based artists making sculptures from ocean debris, and Mirko Sebastian Stränger, a master carpenter in Barcelona, whose wooden boards manage to feel weightless in water.

In over 250 pages of rich photography and informative text, The Other Side of Surfing offers illuminating insights into the ways in which a deeply-felt connection to the sea can inform our work, art, and relationships in our daily lives on land.

About GALINDO Publishing

GALINDO Publishing is a Berlin-based independent publishing company with a focus on design, architecture, travel and the outdoor culture. Their titles are carefully curated with truthful stories (not like any other stories), stunning visuals, personal profiles and original content. Run by a young international team from the world of publishing, photography, design and journalism, GALINDO Publishing opens the door to a world of inspiration and discovery.

