- A fun way to think about our fellow humans
- Comes in a handy small format, perfect for stuffing into backpacks

We each have a biotype. The People Spotter's Guide, Vol 1 is a tongue-in-cheek catalog presenting over 100 types of humans, each illustrated with a photo and – of course satirical – explanatory text to help identify these people in the wild. Here are Homo Securitatis Inferioris (security agents who look like they might run the other way in an emergency) and the Homo Amantus Vestimentatis Identicus (a couple who think they're really twins). To strengthen powers of observation, every example is awarded a number of points the rarer the subspecies the more points awarded. Adventuring has become much more fun with this guide – the only accessory needed.

Animator and cartoonist Tom Borremans is the creator of 'Principal Peter' (for the Flemish weekly Humo) and 'Socially Inept Michiel', one of the most popular items on the TV-show called The Ideal World (on Canvas). For this book he teamed up with Sven Van den Eynde, who works as a writer for the successful TV production house Woestijnvis.
