Tinos Trilogy is a new three-volume box set of photobooks by Clive Frost, featuring images made in Tinos, a Greek island in the Cyclades complex in the Aegean Sea. Alternative Facts, Rock, and Sky Stories comprise an extensive collection of images made between 2018 and 2026. Almost 240 photographs explore Tinos's unique character and Frost's relationship with the island, a place he called home for seven years.

Alternative Facts includes an essay by Makis Andronopoulos, a writer and journalist living in Tinos and Athens, which investigates the environmental, economic, and socio-political factors that shape the island. Rock features an essay by writer, journalist, climber, and former geologist Evan Howell describing Tinos in relation to the granite and marble that are built into the fabric of the island's dynamic landscapes, sculpture, and architecture. And in Sky Stories, Clive Frost writes movingly about the effects of tourism and over-development on Tinos.

Known for his environmental portraiture, interiors and travel photography, Clive Frost has freelanced as a photographer since 1977 for many UK and international publications, most notably The Sunday Review (The Independent on Sunday), FT Weekend and The World of Interiors. His photography has been shown in a number of exhibitions and includes three Association of Photographers Awards and 1st Place in the International Photography Awards. He has published five photobooks under his imprint thePICTURE. Makis Andronopoulos is a journalist and writer who lives in Tinos and Athens. He has written the books The German Syndrome – Greece and Europe in the Face of German Particularity (2013, 2015 and 2024), SAPIENS 3 AGAINST THE TRANSMAN – A Handbook for Transitioning to the 'Other Era' (2023), Greece on the Couch – Processes of Subversion around History, Language and Social Stereotypes (2011) and has translated the futuristic novel by Czech author Jan Weiss, The House with a Thousand Floors (1982). Evan Howell is a Colorado-based science journalist with a focus on Earth science. His work has appeared in Quanta, Wired, National Geographic, Science, Scientific American, Nautilus, High Country News and other outlets. Evan holds a bachelor's degree from Appalachian State University and a master's in Geology from Northern Arizona University. Before journalism, he spent over a decade working as a senior geologist. When he isn't writing, he's out rock climbing, exploring the mountains and deserts with his wife and friends.
